

Pangæa, courtesy of Doctors Without Borders

What to do with all those world atlases

June 29, 2012

For the past several months Doctors Without Borders has been sending me a world atlas along with their donation solicitation letter. I have seven of them now, and rather than just throw them away or hang them on my wall as-is, I got the idea to recreate Pangæa using the modern landmasses (it was also a good use of various odds and ends of mat board scraps I had laying around). Behold, Modern Pangæa:

(click to enlarge and see Modern Pangæa in all its glory)

I'm also not the only one obsessed with maps; a day later I walked into MoMA to find these atlases on the walls:

Archived from the original at <http://denis.papathanasiou.org/>

Bitcoin Donate: 14TM4ADKJbaGEi8Qr8dh4KfPBQmjTshkZ2